Digga Breaks Ground

The Digga Company has broken ground for their new manufacturing facility in the industrial park west of Dyersville. Digga is an Australian Company manufacturing earth moving equipment.

Randy Schuster's homebuilt Challenger takes to the air. Randy said it flies great. Now the 40 hr. flight time starts. After these hours, he can fly anyplace and take anyone along. Randy has been a pilot for over 20 years and decided to build an airplane.

The photo on the left is the reward of his effort.

Ron Radloff and Luke Kramer drove sandpoint sandpoint another ten feet in the ground. We were not getting the water we should from the well so decided to go deeper. After a morning of work and no success, the point and piping had to be pulled. Jesse Tegeler came out with a crane and made light work of pulling the point.

Fred Lansing primes the pump to no avail.

Randy Schuster takes a break and watches the application helicopter move about the airport.

Visitors from Maryland spend the day in Dyersville

Dana Holladay and Meredith Tcherniavsky from Rockville, MD made Dyersville one of their stops on their two month flight across the United States. When they return to Maryland they will have been in every state in the lower 48 with their Piper Cub. Dana and Meredith spent the day touring the Field of Dreams, the Toy Museum and having lunch. Dyersville was their only stop in Iowa. From here they were following their compass to the AirVenture in Oshkosh, WI. Where he proposed to her a few years ago. I looks like they will spend their rest of their life enjoying the Cub. Dana is a CFI and Meredith is a CFII. (Flight instructors)

Thanks to some of our reader, I get this humor to pass on to you. Enjoy.

Aviation 101

It's easy to make a small fortune in aviation. You start with a large fortune.

Flying is not dangerous - crashing is dangerous.
