Work on the Delhi Dam has begun

The water has been diverted around the gates so I presume they will be getting the gates back to working condition. Once the gates are ready to go, the dirt in front of them will be removed, the gates open and the dike will be constructed to divert the water through the gates.

It's that time of the year again. Mike Trenkamp spent the winter going over this mower to assure we would have trouble free mowing this year. Mike and Tony Mineart delivered the mower and Tony tried it out. On a unit like that, cutting grass is more play than work. Mike said it only takes eight passes to mow the runway. Then the small mower trims around the lights and cuts the parking area. A six hour job can now be done in less than two hours.

What does it look like from the back seat of a Cessna 172?

Pilot Craig Kramer and co-pilot Luke Kramer took me for a ride.

We flew over an hour and took many photos of the area. In that hour, we were able to check out Dyersville, Holy Cross, Luxemburg, Petersburg, Worthington and the Delhi Dam.

We feel that photos document history. What was it like in 2014?

This is what it looks like on final for the Dyersville Airport.

Always remember you fly an airplane with your head, not your hands.
Never let an airplane take you somewhere your brain didn't get to five minutes earlier.

Coring at the airport

BARD Materials is having the airport property cored to determine if there is good sand underneath. We always knew that someday BARD may need the sand so this is no surprise.

If enough good sand is found, major decisions will have to be made - such as relocating the airport
