Some days at the airport the tranquility is deafening. All you hear is nature. Then on other days, we just have to lay the work aside and enjoy the company. While fueling the mower, I heard the radio. Bill Fitch was announcing his arrival at Dyersville followed by Mark Amidon of Cedar Rapids announcing he would be landing. Bill and Mark decided that Mark would land first, then stay at the end of the runway until Bill landed. Mark was giving a lesson and wanted his student to have experience on a turf runway. After four or five landings, they left for Cedar Rapids. Bill and Elaine stayed, enjoyed a soda, talked a little and left for Dubuque.

Fred Lansing and crew spent a couple of hours moving the tractor shed in preparation for the well digging. After years of wanting water at the airport, (which will lead to an indoor bathroom), a well will be drilled.

This means we will probably have to buy a coffee pot. One thing leads to another.

Delhi Dam nears completion

As it looks, the pilings have to be removed and maybe a little more dirt work and the lake can be filled. We could see that there is a little water being held back. What has it been? Six years?

Hwy 20 interchange construction continues.

Farm Tek are the buildings in the upper left corner of the photo and the Industrial Park on the bottom right. We are looking SE. Notice the East bound lane is tore up and being graded.

This year is the year of the well. We have been wanting water at the airport for years. Now we will have it. Before the well we trailered water to clean the planes, the outdoor bathroom and the many other uses of water.

This year is turning out to be one of the biggest years for improvement at the airport.

Next is an indoor bathroom. Remember the years when we ate indoors and had the bathroom outdoors. Finally we are getting with the 21st Century.
