Airport used in seeding program

Three rivers FS called in the aerial seeder this month. Corn fields were seeded with rye or some fast growing ground cover. The purpose was to get a crop started before the corn is picked. The corn field can then be grazed during the fall and will be protected from erosion in the spring. Hopefully, next month we will have an indepth report from the people in the know on just what the program is.

Miles Link, son of Gwen Link and Jim Steger is a student of Tim Wieneke and in the midst of his flight lessons. His goal is to get his license, then go to college and get a degree in flight engineering. Miles is the grandson of Al Link and the nephew of Jim Link. Jim was a career pilot in the armed forces. Could it be in the blood ?

Flying Farmers will be coming to Dyersville in 2012.

Terry Drees from the Comfort Inn was notified that the Flying Farmers will be coming to Dyersville in March 2012. Dave Kramer is in contact with Dale Bohrner, who is the contact person for the organization. The Flying Farmers were in Dyersville about 20 years ago before the airport was moved west of town.

Another shot from Fred's helicopter. A fall shot of Luxemburg with the new church steeple.
